SECTION ONE – SHORT RESPONSE

This section has seven question and is worth 51 marks. Answer all questions.

QUESTION 1 (9 marks)

Sarah owns a small café in a busy part of town. She recently introduced a new rule: all employees must work 8-hour shifts, with only one short break allowed during their shift.

One of Sarah's employees, Aisha, is Muslim and requires regular prayer times throughout the day. The new rule makes it difficult for her to find time to pray.

- a. Distinguish between direct and indirect discrimination (4 marks)

- b. Explain how Sarah's rule is an example of indirect discrimination (1 mark)

When Aisha talks to Sarah, Sarah's attitude towards Aisha religion is positive; she believes that everyone has the right to their own religious beliefs. However, she still refuses to provide for Aisha's prayer breaks.

- c. Discuss how Sarah's cognitive dissonance might affect her and possibly change her attitudes if she were made aware that her rule is indirectly discriminating against Sarah. (2 marks)

Social Identity Theory (SIT) is a theory within social psychology that explains the role of social membership in intergroup behaviour.

- d. Identify one strength and one limitation of social identity theory

- e. Describe how Sarah's rule might affect the social identity of her employees (2 marks)

QUESTION 2 (6 marks)

- a. Using one example of each, compare dispositional and situational attributions (4 marks)

- b. Explain what is meant by fundamental attribution error (2 marks)

QUESTION 3 (6 marks)

Van der Meer et al. (2020) recruited participants with strong views on certain social issues to view eight headlines relevant to those issues. The headlines came from media outlets with different political orientations. Participants were asked to rate the likelihood that they would read each article. The study found that participants more often rated articles consistent with their views as ‘highly likely to read’.

- a. Describe one source of cognitive dissonance from this study. (2 marks)

- b. Identify and explain two ways which the referenced cognitive dissonance can be reduced. (4 marks)

QUESTION 4 (6 marks)

The Robbers Cave Experiment is a classic study in social psychology by Muzafer Sherif which investigated the cause of prejudice and the effectiveness of contact hypothesis in reducing prejudice.

- a. Identify the year in which the experiment took place (1 mark)

- b. Discuss the main findings in the Robbers Cave Experiment (3 marks)

- c. Identify and explain one ethical concern with the Robbers Cave Experiment (2 marks)

QUESTION 5 (8 marks)

Andrea has recently started a new job and on her first day at work she noticed that all her colleagues were dressed much more formal than she was. The following day, she decides to change her dress style to something smarter.

- a. Is this a form of normative influence or informational influence? (1 mark)

- b. Justify your answer. (3 marks)

- c. Compare and contrast between compliance and obedience (4 marks)

QUESTION 6 (8 marks)

In an experiment into conformity, an experimenter varied both the number of confederates (stooges) and the ambiguity of the task. The bar chart below shows the findings.

Percentages of conformity for different tasks and size of majority

a. Describe what the bar chart shows about conformity (4 marks)

Most research into conformity takes place in a laboratory.

b. Outline one strength and one limitation of conducting research in a laboratory. (2 marks)

When you are a passenger on a train, you are much more likely to move to another seat if the ticket collector tells you to move than if another passenger tells you to do so.

c. Explain why this happens (2 marks)

QUESTION 7 (8 marks)

In 1964, Kitty Genovese was arriving home from work in the middle of the night when she was brutally stabbed to death. Multiple witnesses observed the attack but failed to intervene or call for help

- d. Identify and explain the concept that explains why you are less likely to help when other people are present (4 marks)

The case led to increased awareness of how people behave in emergencies, prompting research into factors that contribute to inaction.

- e. Describe two factors that would prompt/encourage someone to take action (4 marks)

SECTION TWO – EXTENDED RESPONSE

This section has one question and is worth 28 marks. You must answer this question.

QUESTION 8 (28 marks)

Lei is a new Year 7 student who has migrated to Perth from Taiwan.

Recently, she has noticed a lot of peer pressure to act in certain ways to fit in. At lunch, her friends tease and bully a poor boy who could not afford the school uniform, and Lei joins in because she doesn't want to be singled out. Lei doesn't actually agree with their behavior, but she finds herself going along with the group anyway.

Eventually the situation intensifies and Lei steps back. She stands by in silence, watching as her friends continue to engage in the bullying.

Discuss Lei's experiences with attitudes, conformity and anti-social behaviour.

Your response should include:

- (a) Differentiation between prejudice and discrimination, justifying which term fits Lei's initial behaviour (4 marks)
- (b) Analysis of Lei's affective, behavioural and cognitive attitude when bullying the poor boy. (6 marks)
- (c) Discussion of environmental factors that influences bullying (3 marks)
- (d) Explanation of why Lei conformed to bullying, despite internal disagreement. Give at least two reasons (6 marks)
- (e) Explanation of why Lei did not speak up, and instead, stood in silence. Give at least two reasons (6 marks)
- (f) Grammar/punctuation and use of correct psychological terminology (3 marks)
